Business Takes Precise Planning

Boise, ID., December 17, 2007, Dwight D. Eisenhower once said, "Plans are nothing, planning is everything". What did President Eisenhower mean when he made that statement? How many of us plan to take action on something we know is important yet we do very little to realize those goals?

As we look at the start of a new year, most business people are creators of a large list of things to do. The average business person plans, the exceptional business person works their plan through completion and takes action to achieve goals...not just plan.

As the seasons change and people watch the clock of business tick, time is everything! What you do today will effect the outcome of tomorrow. Likewise, what you fail to complete today will also effect tomorrow. Will you take action towards success postpone those actions yet again?

Each winter Attention To Details is bombarded with email request for people looking to gain knowledge within the detailing business and skills as professional detailing technicians. While Attention To Details aims to service as many as possible, remember that the detailing training we provide is Private! We do not perform group trainings and therefore our training options are at a premium twelve months a year! While we can fit most people into our busy detailing training schedule, during the coming months the preferred dates are reserved quickly.

The Attention To Details Calendar of Events Page on our website has been updated and includes many of the available dates that remain open for your next step to success within your detailing business. Our new site also has several password protected areas that offer support and continued education for our past students and affiliate locations!
